

SALife™

The best of Adelaide and South Australia

DEPUTY EDITOR

SALife magazine is looking for a capable and enthusiastic Deputy Editor to join our highly creative and professional team, working on SALife and associated publications. This is a feature writing, editing and supervisory position.

The successful candidate will have had considerable experience in magazines or newspapers.

You will have the ability to work with, brief and be respected by contributors, and be able to liaise effectively with other departments (creative, advertising and administrative).

You will enjoy being pro-active, bringing ideas to the editorial conferences.

We're looking for someone who is thorough, well organised and is able to work constructively with management to ensure the ongoing commercial success of the magazine and continue to increase circulation.

You will understand the way South Australians think and feel about our State, having lived here for some time.

Can you maintain the character and ethos of the magazine in your presentation, professionalism and performance? If so, this is a job with a great future.
